

COLORADO
HAS A
RADIO NET.

FIG. 01 · MESH
PROPAGATION

§ 01 WHY IT EXISTS

/ 01

HANDS-ON TECH

Build it, flash it, deploy it, then watch your messages hop across town. The whole stack is yours to learn.

WORKS OFF-GRID

On the trail, at the campsite, up the canyon. The radios talk to each other directly and through repeaters.

/ 03

FREE AND OPEN-SOURCE

Hardware is a one-time $30–$60. The firmware lives on GitHub. No subscription, no account, no lock-in.

/ 04

A REAL COMMUNITY

Local meetups, an active Discord, neighbors trading tips on antennas, mounts, and which boards are worth buying.

§ 02 HOW TO JOIN

01 VISIT THE SITE OR HOP IN DISCORD

Start at coloradomesh.org or scan a QR below. Local operators will help you pick gear that fits your spot.

02 PICK UP A NODE — $30 TO $60

Common picks: Heltec V4, WisMesh Tag, LilyGo T-Deck, or any 915 MHz LoRa board.

03 FLASH MESHCORE OR MESHTASTIC

Both are free and open-source. We mostly run MeshCore. Our community will walk you through getting started. Place the node high, with a view.

THIS IS FOR YOU IF YOU'RE...

|----------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------|
| → Curious about radio, mesh, or how networks really work | → A ham looking for a fun digital mode      |
| → A maker who likes to build, solder, and 3D-print cases | → A coder who wants something cool to flash |
| → A parent wanting hands-on tech with the kids           | → Privacy-curious and into open-source      |
| → A hiker, camper, climber, or cyclist                   | → Someone who just thinks this sounds rad   |
